
Fresh Baked Bread

Posted by Leigh - 2007/06/01 20:39

Advertising is dumbing down the Culture.

So common in advertising today is the use of adverbs as adjectives.

It should be written either as "Freshly Baked Bread" or as

"Fresh, Baked Bread" - using a comma to separate two adjectives modifying the noun Bread.

However, people no longer know the difference and it is likely to become accepted grammar soon as our English language devolves.

Ain't that so, Arelene?

Post edited by: Leigh, at: 2007/06/01 20:42
